I don't know the meaning of the words "hiped" and "eyeballs". It sounds like something came out of her eyes. A: As @user69104 said, the expression is just a generic way of saying that you're being taken advantage of. It has no "real" meaning, it's just an idiom. A: It is a seemingly archaic, now obsolete idiom with the slang meaning of being taken advantage of by someone who was once, if not still, attractive. In this situation, it is referring to some sort of trick or con being played on the narrator, for example "hiping" up to their expectations, which may have been set very high and are now being greatly disappointed. Hiped in the sense of being taken advantage of is coming from the verb
