Why you might want to use Photoshop There are two main reasons why you might want to use Photoshop. Firstly, editing photos with Photoshop is the most intuitive and fun way of editing photos. Secondly, Photoshop is great for creating and designing your own websites or web apps. Photoshop is a lot more than a design software. It's an all-in-one design and photo editing software. Photoshop is a powerful, professional tool and designers and photographers should use Photoshop to create and edit photos and images. How it works The Photoshop interface is divided into a wide range of menus, panel and tools. A lot of the Photoshop elements can also be accessed by navigating through your main folders. Newer versions of Photoshop have the main interface organized into a split tab layout that shows the main editing panel on the left and a chat bar on the right. Windows users have to use Alt to open the application. Photoshop on Mac doesn't have that but the user can still use the more keyboard-friendly Photoshop interface. Photoshop tools Photoshop has a huge array of tools to edit and manipulate images. Each tool is presented with a main icon and a bunch of sub-icons. Tool for photo editing and adjustment Apart from a few exceptions, the tools are usually grouped into the main photo editing tools. You can also use the non-photo editing tools to edit or design websites. Each tool has a default shortcut, but you can also create a custom shortcut that works with the same keyboard sequence. Here is a screenshot of the default Photoshop tools. Brushes Photoshop has an extensive set of pen-type tools, including circles, squares, lines, rectangles, rounded rectangles and other shapes. Each tool has a default pen-type tool and you can also use your own brush. Select a tool Tools like the shape tools, pens, pencils and the magic wand are used to select different portions of the image, edit them, or combine them together. In addition to the standard tools, you can also save your own custom brushes. Photoshop Elements brushes are only available for Windows users. Painting and drawing Using the tools in Photoshop is just like using a paintbrush to create your own masterpiece. You can also use the pen tool to create intricate designs and shapes.

If you want to keep up to date with what's happening in the world of security and privacy this is the place to be. I'll try and keep you informed about current events, great resources and valuable insights into the global threat landscape Quick Start Guide for Elasticsearch Admittedly this is not a "Quick Start" guide. From one of my previous blog posts it's clear that Elasticsearch is a complex product to configure. This post will simply cover the setup of the basic Elasticsearch components: data repository (Elasticsearch), index provider (SDL Elasticsearch) and search provider (Elasticsearch Cloud). Step 1: Install Elasticsearch Docker container Step 2: Install SDL Elasticsearch Step 3: Install Elasticsearch Cloud Step 1: Install Elasticsearch Docker container Using the official Elasticsearch Docker images will save you the hassle of running the Elasticsearch stack locally in the cloud. You will need an Ubuntu VM that has 4GB or more of RAM. The official Elasticsearch Docker images are built using Debian and rely on a single Dockerfile. Dockerfiles are basically Makefiles for Docker container images. You can quickly learn how to build a Dockerfile from the official Docker documentation. With a little patience, you can even modify an existing Dockerfile to run your own custom Elasticsearch container. Create a directory and name it `elasticsearch` : `mkdir elasticsearch` Now, download the official Elasticsearch Docker image: `wget -O elasticsearch.tar.gz` Extract the content of the download in the given directory: `tar -xzf elasticsearch.tar.gz` This will create a directory named `elasticsearch`. Step 2: Install SDL Elasticsearch Before you start, make sure that the SDL Elasticsearch version is either 2.0.2 or later, as there have been many changes in Elasticsearch 5.x and 6.x: `grep pom elasticsearch.zip | awk '{ print $2 }' | xargs pacman -S` Before we continue, make sure that the Elasticsearch and Elasticsearch Java (JVM) packages are installed: `[root@es-docker-1 elasticsearch]# pacman -S elastic`
