"The president made that decision in early September. He hasn't wavered on it," Sanders said. ADVERTISEMENT "He's going to meet with [trade] representatives. We hope that that will lead to positive outcomes and we're hopeful that China will as well. And we'll see what happens." U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer Robert (Bob) Emmet Lighthizer Whiskey, workers and friends caught in the trade dispute crossfire GOP senator warns quick vote on new NAFTA would be 'huge mistake' Pelosi casts doubt on USMCA deal in 2019 MORE has said the tariffs are meant to incentivize Beijing to make changes to its policies. But Sanders said the president will take action to secure trade agreements with other countries, including China. "For us, this is about securing our economy. This is about stopping the theft of intellectual property. This is about making sure that China follows the rules of trade," she said. "We want China to work with us and not against us." The White House has not yet revealed which countries it is targeting with the threatened tariffs. Sanders also declined to say what the administration has learned from talks with Canada and Mexico to secure the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). The administration is currently in the process of renegotiating the agreement and could decide to exit the pact with Mexico and Canada after 60 to 90 days if it does not reach an agreement. The talks between the three countries are also ongoing. She did say that the tariffs will not have an effect on trade with Canada and Mexico. "Right now, as far as we can tell, Mexico and Canada are not on the list of countries that we are planning on initiating that tariff," she said. "And so we're looking for positive outcomes, but we also want to make

The actress and her fiancé Brian Austin Green have been spotted with their child at a number of high profile events, but it looks like the pregnant beauty is about to undergo a few changes. After stripping down and singing for her wedding to Green in a "mirrorball", she's now been spotted in a bikini and wearing her hair in a bun and high heels for the first time since her pregnancy was announced. Megan Fox Is Pregnant With Brian Austin Green's Baby Fox confirmed her pregnancy to fans on Twitter and has been posting photos of herself in the last few days. The actress has been showing off her bump, and she's also been getting candid shots and writing about how much she's enjoying being a mom-to-be. But it looks like she might be going a little more natural with her public wardrobe changes. Fox posted an adorable shot of herself looking out a window of a hotel room window while sitting in a bathrobe on June 7. She wrote, "We can't wait to meet our little baby." On June 6, the actress posted a shot of herself in a bikini and high heels in what appears to be her kitchen at a home in New York. She wrote, "Sitting down for dinner with my little family. We're starting to get into a dinner pattern which is nice." In yet another Instagram photo from June 7, Fox showed off a photo of herself in a long white dress and a flower crown, sitting on a white porch swing. She wrote, "On the porch with my darling husband," and later in the afternoon posted a shot of herself in a yellow bikini. On June 6, Fox posted a video of her and Green walking down a beach in Key West with their daughter in a little white floaty dress,
