Nancy is the daughter of renowned Neuro-scientists. Being raised as a scientist herself she easily accepted a career-step and a fellowship at the Neurotech Institute. A wonderful life in the company of bright minds, reading science articles and new findings, was at its best; after her mentor passed away and the company was shut down, Nancy was left with a bitter taste in her mouth. Just months after she lost her beloved mentor she was faced with a sudden death in her family. The only proof she had on the cause of her parents' untimely demise was the mysterious device they left her. After 20 years Nancy has finally found her parents' scientific creation and she is determined to bring them back in the spotlight. Secret of her parents' death is about to be revealed in a most unusual way! The only person who can help her is either a CIA agent or a new friend of Nancy's, a leading expert in the field of neural control of brain chemistry. Nancy soon realizes that the task of finding the truth is much more difficult than it seems. Few years ago an unusual experiment was conducted at the Neurotech Institute. The results were a bit surprising, but even more bizarre is the offer of the CIA. Nancy accepts the offer and the whole family is moved to a new house in a secluded part of the forest. Except her father. He was unwilling to cooperate, but his daughter was determined to get to the bottom of the matter, find the truth, and bring the Neurotech Institute's old secrets back to the attention of the world. Nancy can be hired as the only agent of the CIA or the other way around. She must find a way out of the "lab" where the situation is complicated by the presence of other agents as well as scientists that want to leave her no breathing space. Find the notes and help Nancy piece together the fragments of the puzzle before she's finished... Bold, vibrant, unique, awesome. Hell of a game and a pretty fun to play. I'm just stuck in a spot right now, not much of what to do, and not really sure what the hell I'm supposed to do. Time and Space Are Dual Forces Every game has time. Every game has space. But what if these dual forces make the player feel like there is more than just the game? What if there are scores more dimensions where there was once nothing, yet there is something? You are Barenziah, a special agent

What's new in Family Mysteries 3: Criminal Mindset:

Tracy was never in it for the money. Friends would often wonder about her dedication to her work for the insurance company as she spent days at a time working from her home office. Until, that was, she and her grandson, Dorian, and their friend James hit upon a brainstorm when they began playing a game. Together, they founded an insurance company. And for whatever reason, Tracy became very interested in life insurance, and quite a bit, actually. By George Warrington By George Warrington lives in Tampa, Fla., and writes full time. A graduate of Lee University, George is a retired sign company owner. It was the 1982 season of Major League Baseball. Tracy stepped into one of the visitor's bullpen, back-slapping on one pitch and shaking on the next. The pale green and blue uniforms were worn by many of the usual suspects. The Phillies and the Giants dominated the American League, but in the National League, the Cardinals and the Dodgers far outshone the rest of the division. The national media had just awarded the world series to the Cardinals, the defending world champions. And now they prepare for the 1982 World Series, which the Dodgers hope to bring home to Brooklyn. It was May when Tracy walked into the visiting bullpen, back-slapping and shaking. A soft, five-foot-seven ball-picker, she seemed hardly any different from her brothers, the five tall and well-built brothers in the mix of the mainstream MLB teams. Tracy balled a few more for the bullpen pitcher, trying to impress him, then moved on to the next package. Just another rep. She would be sure to be ready Monday morning. Father Ed Valiant turns to see his wife in the opposite box. Like Tracy, he is a successful rep as well. Some in the church district describe him as a preacher's son. Ed, though, has outdone his father, having attended several top colleges before entering the ministry. His oldest boy, Jerod, serves as an assistant preacher in the College Church in South Park, and his youngest son, Dorian, attends the high school. (His other children: Brent, is a hard-headed attorney, and the twins, Stephen and Dominic, serve as preachers in one of the suburban churches. The Valiant children are high achievers and generally well prepared for a life in the ministry.) As Tracy scrambles to complete her rep, Ed notices three people enter the visiting
