Imagine your significant other is leaving you for the next person you meet. You begin to cry. Then you think about the two of you sitting at a paseo table at Mexico City's Teatro Corona. The first CD you played was "Dos" by Juan Gabriel, and it transformed you to tears. The next was an album of Ricky Martin songs. He danced with the woman you would soon marry, then danced with someone else, and you realized it was you. You stare at the CD cover while your feelings for Ricky Martin are replaced by the blue, pink and green images of the Reggaetón Pixles. How do you tell him about your feelings? How will your kids look at you when they grow up? Will you be a hermana? The questions will keep you awake, or at least on the edge of your seat. The Pixles get their inspiration from everyday object, characters in movies, books and Internet legends. There are no rules to solving the Jigsaw Puzzles. You need to be creative. You get a background theme for each of the Jigsaw Puzzles. If you move on to the next one, the music continues. Go back to the first puzzle, return to the second one, and the music will turn on again. There are no loading screens, so you can move around and solve puzzles without waiting. You must be logged in to see this link. PlayPixel Puzzles Traditional Jigsaws Classic - Flash Version The music is a perfect fit for the ambient theme of the game, and triggers emotions during your travels through the world of the Pixles. You can solve each puzzle in any order, and you can even skip ahead to the next puzzle after you've solved the previous one. There are no rules or time limits to your solving process. Go to the Pixle's website and get your own free account. Then download the classical music from the Pixle's library and play the music on your home computer. The background theme changes as the music continues, and you can look forward to new puzzles every month or so. Go back and solve the old ones as you wanted. Then look forward to new puzzles while having a new CD soundtrack - one of the best online puzzle games around. The Jigsaw Puzzles are always a big hit. The Pixle's website offers audio previews of a number of the puzzles already. Go to the Pixle's site, then click on the "Digital Puzzle Game" link at the top of the page. When you get to the puzzle

What's new:

If you are an avid puzzle fan looking for a collective experience in one purchase, you'll find a mixture of traditional and digital puzzles. We've got those old fashioned, cheap strong boxes and hand tools to give any puzzle fan joy. There's something about the United States of America that's saturated with its past. It's a country rich in history. That's all the more reason for a collector to have access to a wide variety of puzzles. You can buy puzzles for classical museum pieces, puzzles for game pieces, puzzles for store and show pieces and puzzles for fun. The Key Factory in Key West and New York has players enjoy local themes such as Latin American puzzles and the Don Diego Puzzle Box travels the paths of the "America's Cup." Here is an outline of some of the puzzles you might find here. Amusement Puzzles Amusement puzzles range from games to logic puzzles. Games include the chess, checkers and Scrabble games popularized in Europe. Key pieces are assembled in an "impossible" way with a variety of different colors to keep the attentions of the player. One is placed on the board and metal pieces are assembled to make a picture. Puzzles like Crosswords are time dependent upon memory. Logic puzzles, including Snakes and Ladders and Rubic's Cubes are built off the philosophy that you can represent an object, such as a square or a triangle, by a series of numbers and a number of hypotenuse that act as directions. Educational Puzzles Educational puzzles are inherently unique. A child can enjoy these puzzles and build on them to make puzzles for adults. Board puzzles are specifically time dependent, but they can also be skill dependent. Scrabble's adult form "Murder" requires matching of words onto a grid for the most successful plays. In addition to board puzzles, story puzzles and even word puzzles are available. Puzzles for Psychological

Development and Playfulness Modern puzzles are becoming more complex and difficult. Digit puzzles, the old multiplication type puzzles in which you solve equations for the numbers were once considered fun to play with children. Music puzzles accompany a song or music being played and are also designed to be played at a certain tempo. Crossword puzzles that use the standard crossword puzzle grid while presenting the grid with the layout of words that a crossword puzzle is filling in are being used in psychology classes to teach vocabulary. New forms of puzzles based on shapes to solve have been designed. Unlike
