Determination of hexahydro-1,3,5-trinitro-1,3,5-triazine (RDX) and octahydro-1,3,5,7-tetranitro-1,3,5,7-tetraazacyclooctane (HMX) in blood using solid-phase extraction and gas chromatography/mass spectrometry. This study demonstrated a rapid, sensitive, selective, accurate, precise and reliable GC/MS-based method for the simultaneous determination of hexahydro-1,3,5-trinitro-1,3,5-triazine (RDX) and octahydro-1,3,5,7-tetranitro-1,3,5,7-tetraazacyclooctane (HMX) in human blood. Samples were first prepared by solid-phase extraction using ethyl acetate and methanol as the extractant and eluting solvents, respectively. The limits of detection of RDX and HMX were 1.46 and 0.86ng/mL (1ng/mL was the limit of detection for RDX and HMX in the blood). The linear ranges for the two explosives were from 0.5 to 20ng/mL. The relative standard deviations and the recoveries of RDX and HMX in blood were all less than 5.0%. The present study indicated that the method is very sensitive and can be used for the simultaneous determination of RDX and HMX in human blood. Q: Caching of view state of Views In the average ASP.NET application, when we render a page, the corresponding View-State is loaded and stored in a datastore (an in-memory list, in my case), along with the Page object and the corresponding Session-State. Our games have a singular focus: story. Last Word is the perfect balance of action and adventure, conversation and narration. Think an essay with your feet (and even your boobs). Adventurous. Cunning. Brilliant. Mysterious. Exhilarating. Last Word is an adventure in pontification and criticism. All with your feet. About Lannie Neely III: Lannie "Merlandese" Neely III is an independent game developer and concept designer based in DC, MD, and currently GA. Currently working on Last Word with producer/coder/mixer/content designer Fernando "Ferdk" Carabajal. The design of this game started with the dialogue between the characters. All backgrounds and sound clips have been recorded by Lannie himself. Conversation Pieces is a free two-part series released in 2015 in which I created a fictional game based on the concept of conversation pieces in which the player's actions throughout the game influence the outcome of a culture of conversation. In the first part, entitled The Conversation, the player controls a chatty character who can talk to (and be talked to by) people throughout the game. The player can also take their conversation on the road by carrying a conversation piece, which gives their character the ability to tell stories and ask questions when needed. The Conversation is a solo playthrough at an average length of four hours, containing about forty minutes of talking, and sixty-five minutes of game play. In the second part, entitled The Speculation, the player takes on the role of a character who is on the scene of a conversation piece written by a friend. The player has been tasked with discussing the conversation piece with the other characters, drawing their own conclusions about the work. The player, or possibly other characters, can decide to engage in speculations about the work or to pretend that they do not know anything about the piece. The Speculation is a co-op multiplayer game, played with up to three players. At any given time, one player is the writer, who has been tasked with formulating a speculation based on their fictionalized friend's conversation piece. The other two players are (fictional) characters who are part of the conversation piece being discussed by the writer, and so are potentially interested in the piece themselves. These two players must discuss the conversation piece with the writer, either accepting or rejecting their speculation. Additionally, they can attempt to find inconsistencies in the writer's speculation, and the writer can attempt to

The original split was made on April 15, 1729 at the Court of Chancery in St Mary's City, a seat of the Maryland Judiciary during the seventeenth century. The history of the county shows early settlements in the 18th and 19th centuries leading up to the Civil War. Malicious reporting (politically motivated libel) by the Washington National Intelligencer newspaper led to prosecutions of notable citizens. Many of these prosecutions were later overturned.
