Screenshot Comments Yeah, looks interesting. I'll try to check it out on my bb this evening. I'm also a little bit suspicious as to how many game devs say that their games are Linux-native and yet only check out Windows. When I've looked into this with games I work on, I find that they are Linux-native from the start so it's entirely plausible that they're just being lazy and just checking out Windows. That being said, given the claims of high FPS on Linux, it looks like they're doing a good job. $10 is a bit high. I wouldn't expect it to be free if they weren't targeting Linux at some point. I've been looking around for a good action game for Linux. This looks like it could be a good one. I've got a few more check out first, but this one's at the top of my list. (At least the FMA 3 characters are) I'm playing it on my Linux desktop. It's running smooth enough, but I'd recommend playing on a laptop or similar. It runs very smoothly on a P4 3.1Ghz with a Radeon HD4890, but your mileage may vary. Basically, you play as the main character, but the real strength of this game is the ability to create your own character and its own world. It's good to go along with your own story, with whatever you wish to do, or go along for the ride, I'm personally somewhere in the middle. As far as online games go, I had a blast with this on my Xbox. I've got my hopes

What's new in Elden Ring:

The moon's waning crescent looks as if it is caught within the vast, misty sea --
The dusk is darkening as the pangs of evening seep into the sky,
The grumblings of the surging ocean all but drown out the night's soft pitch-black seas, While the wind and waves of the vast, vapid sea lap against the island's scattered boulders.

As usual, no answer is forthcoming.

Is it presumptuous for me to ask this of you?

No, I should not have spoken so boldly.

But I have longed for such peace...

If it is that you expect your answer, then all I can do is to send you off on your journey.

We have finally arrived at the place to which all of you must go. Now, the time that we have waited for is upon us.

The EGLO VANISHENG CHUKO

There, above the desolate winds on the decaying iceberg,
A ladder stretches into the darkness, beckoning to an other dimension.

You return, beads of sweat across your face.

The other Elden Lords notice you immediately, greet you earnestly.

"The EGLO VANISHENG CHUKO! Thank you for waiting for us. Welcome! Welcome! Have you been well?"

"You have no need to take it anymore. You are free of the Labyrinth of Lost Souls, as you have asked."
