military to Ukraine border to deter Russian aggression The US is to deploy a "defense element" of 450 troops to the Ukrainian border to deter Russian aggression, the Pentagon has said. The move, which will be announced on Tuesday, will provide a "show of force" and will "sustain US commitments" to support Ukraine, two officials said on Sunday. While the troops are not permanent stationed, the move will be part of "regular order" and will increase as tensions with Russia escalate. The deployment comes days after Russia shelled the eastern Ukrainian port of Mariupol, which is now on the brink of being completely cut off from the rest of the country. The US and Western allies have imposed sanctions on Russia in response to the annexation of the Crimean Peninsula. The US has also been the strongest supporter of pro-European elements in the Ukrainian government fighting for independence and a share in the Kiev government.

The US and EU have backed the Ukrainian government's military campaign in a bid to
