Push the Box PlayVladimir Gulyaev / TASS / AFP / Getty Images Russian President Vladimir Putin waves as he arrives for a meeting with China's President Xi Jinping at the Great Hall of the People in Beijing on November 11, 2013 BEIJING — China is working “on a daily basis” to resolve the Ukraine crisis, the country’s president said on Saturday as he closed his first summit with Russian President Vladimir Putin — the first of two meetings between the two leaders. Xi Jinping and Putin met for four hours Friday in Beijing, and this weekend’s summit continues their official friendship, forged in 2012 when the two sat down together in Moscow and agreed to set up a hotline between the two militaries. The campaign against Ukraine’s Russian-backed separatists has escalated in recent months, leading to a three-month conflict that has left over 6,300 dead. “In order to keep peace and stability in the world, China is resolutely opposed to the use of force and is working on a daily basis to resolve the Ukraine issue,” Xi said, according to a joint statement released Saturday. He reportedly began the meeting Saturday by saying, “In today’s world, stability is the prerequisite for development.” Russia has also been taking steps to ease relations with the new, U.S.-backed Ukrainian government. Putin said that his country “is ready to help” the new Ukrainian leadership. “During the meeting, the sides exchanged views on the overall state of affairs in Ukraine, including current developments in eastern Ukraine,” the Kremlin said Saturday. “The situation on the contact line has substantially stabilized, and the border has been opened for a number of times.” State television showed Putin and Xi giving each other a bear hug. The Russian president also called Xi a “friend and a brother.” Friday’s meeting came after weeks of tension between the two countries, stemming from Russia◆

Critics Say: "You'll always be looking down the barrel of a gun in Doom, but that's part of the appeal and why the game is such a blast to play. The world is apocalyptic, so there are some fun additions to it. Doom 3 also succeeds in pitting you against demons and other violent creatures in the most brutal ways. The game's biggest potential pitfall is the bizarreness of the multiplayer aspect. After playing through Doom 3 for a while, you'll want to keep on playing with your buddies, but the deathmatch and killmatch mechanisms are as expensive as they are deadly. The diversity of play is amazing, and adding new weapons, perks, and modes can make this game nearly identical to the original Doom. It can be quite tough to find a game that doesn't feel like its system is being stripped away and replaced by a newer version. In other words, Doom 3 may not be the new, improved Doom of the same time, but it is a unique 3D shooter experience. It feels right at home on the new generation of consoles. If that's the case, they don't need to continue playing 'Call of Duty,' this is their version of Doom." -IGN (10/3/04) Critics Say: "Doom III would be an excellent title to insert into the increasingly diverse library of Unreal games, but there are people out there who would rather play their favorite sci-fi action title rather than anything with the stench of what I like to call Monday-morning-quarterbacking nose-picking. For those folks, I've tried to introduce more realism into the original Doom, and in some cases, I think the changes have improved the game. The end result is a Doom that feels more realistic while still being fun and engaging. Unfortunately, that isn't enough for some people, and they act like the Doom they know and love doesn't exist. Doom 3 is a breath of fresh air for the series and for the genre of first-person-shooter." -IGN (10/3/04) Critics Say: "Doom 3, however, succeeds in most games of its type: a single player campaign of action, with an average of 50 hours of game play, hours and hours of opportunities to test your current arsenal of weapons, and so on. What's new:

“Even though we haven’t been to an event for two and a half years - I really don’t want to come back. I’m convinced that the morale of the team is incredible. They’re getting better, and they’re always eager to play, which is something we enjoyed all the time.” “2017 didn’t really start until March, the first big price increase. We had to increase steam room capacity and hire some new cooks, because the food was just so bad. 2017 was the same year as the growth of a club. Eagerness for the growth of the club was not in sync with progress - rather, the opposite. We had to rush the construction of a completely new facility instead of finishing the old structure and building a modern facility. It will be inaugurated later this year.” “Grow’n’cooking is in decline. Most of the very young people who worked in kimchi factories have left for the cities. A culture is developing now, where fun and food go hand in hand. “I’d like to do something even without Jongmyo. What I’m planning is a self-catheterization operation for the 33-year-old member. He’s not just sleeping a lot, but wants to pull the machine out from under the bed without waking anyone up. Also, in a plane ticket game, he wants to fly to Japan together with me and buy a two-bedroom condo for us to live in together. “Now, in the summer, the members don’t come together, but they gather in front of city hall while drinking - I’d like to create music together with them, too.” “Recently, I think that the members are more like each other’s family members than employees. Just like family members, members are not on duty, but go wherever they want to go together. This is something people who run businesses have trouble with.” “You can only do as much as you have confidence. I’m conscious that no matter what I say, I’m very conscious that my past mistakes have kept me from reaching that confidence. I think if I apologize, I’d have a normal attitude that [would prevent] me from showing a sense of superiority.” K
