Okay, long story short: I made a custom installer that installs the software, then prompted the user to paste the serial number and paste it into the . exe. I am running this as an update agent. Now I want to do the same with VMWare Fusion. I want the installation to be similar to my installer, only with VMWare. In this case, when I run it, I want it not to freeze but just install the software and update it to the latest version. I did this so that it only updates the software to the latest version. I don't want it to update to the latest version when it's not installed.

The challenge is that the SP does not have any output parameters, so I need to perform validation on all input parameters. What I've tried: Checking whether all the input parameters are set (they're all nullable) Using a SELECT query to get a list of the input parameters and echo the parameters to the screen to visually check the values Outputting the parameters via the command line (using echo?fmt=xml?) This is the only
