February 23, 2014 - 802.11g High Power Wireless USB Adapter. There are probably many different boards used in these things, and the chipsets could potentially vary. First, you need to know that 802.11g and 802.11g+ devices have different standards. The 802.11g standard, which will be discussed in this section, supports 2.4 and 5 GHz, while 802.11g+ operates in the 5 GHz band. 802.11g and 802.11g+ provide data rates up to 54 Mbps. (If you are using 802.11b, the data transfer rate may be significantly slower.) dd2bc28256
