[Clinical and laboratory studies in a case of chronic diarrhea associated with hepatitis A]. Between December 1978 and June 1979, 1064 stool specimens were obtained from 132 inpatients and 932 were obtained from 125 outpatients with diarrhoea. In total, 2.3% of stool specimens were positive for anti-HAV. Of the 932 patients, 16 (1.6%) were positive for anti-HAV. We examined and compared the clinical and laboratory findings in a patient with chronic diarrhoea associated with hepatitis A. The chronological changes of biochemical values and clinical symptoms in the patient with chronic hepatitis A are also described. Logan Airport construction site (file photo) Logan Airport construction has had a negative impact on the residents of the Mary Hull neighborhood as well as those at the Nevin Avenue and La Brea Avenue intersections. There have been construction traffic closures on many routes throughout the city which cause a delay in commutes. One route that has been particularly affected is the Nevin Avenue route to Logan Airport. Drivers have shared their frustrations on social media, expressing their anger on Facebook and Twitter. Although the project is under review for a potential fix to these issues, Boston's overall transportation planning director described the problem as a "system" issue, rather than one that has only been occurring in the Mary Hull neighborhood. Bristol Post Flooding: Round-Up of Up to date Updates The latest updates on the major flooding that has occurred across Bristol City Centre this week can be found below. If you are visiting the city and find yourself being asked to evacuate for flooding - do not attempt to do so yourself. Call the 1-800-#555 line for help from the Civil Defence or call Emergency at 101 where staff will provide assistance and direct you to local civil defence agencies who can help with the removal of belongings from your property. He was released on bail but remains under surveillance by the police. Police are still trying to trace the four alleged middlemen to bring them in for questioning, says EGI Mphande, spokesperson for the Hawks. The four are based in Bisho, Duthan. They will soon be interviewed by the police to learn more about this. These men are being used by the perpetrators who run a fraudulent company that notifies employees that their employees have been injured on the job, but these men have no records of actual physical damage to their body, says EGI Mphande. They are hired to barge into workplaces at meal times with documents that they are carrying. They then arrive at the work place with a team of people, and install secret cameras that later show that there was no physical injury. This is just the tip of the iceberg in the world of fraud perpetrated by hire companies that staff only to scam unsuspecting employers out of their hard-earned salaries. Although the fraud is rampant, South Africa's authorities have not followed up by adopting real-time mobile technology. This has made it more difficult for police and crime-fighters to track down fraudsters and catch them red-handed, says EGI Mphande. He says that when a company's staff is justifiably punched, they would likely record the incident on video, and they should be able to play it back. More than five years ago, the South African Police Service (SAPS) introduced real-time video evidence that could be shown in court to demonstrate serious crime that has been committed. The last time that video evidence was played in court was on 8 May 2013 in the murder of 34-year-old Thandwe Mabusa.
