by C Wilcox Â· 2010 Â· Cited from 18 - It is well known that spam bots mainly use compromised machines with certain address characteristics, such as dynamically distributed addresses. Live broadcast where a person gathered an IP. But what if he wants not to just see the IP of the computer, namely the computer itself? And how difficult to get it? Of course, you can try to manually track IP, but how much time it takes to track absolutely all public IP addresses. But what about those IPs that are not public? What about addresses belonging to computers? How about home computers, as well as computers that use certain web browsers, such as Firefox?

July 28, 2021 - Spam Bot steals IP addresses? Hey guys, today, during the broadcast, a new subscriber entered the chat. Its IP address begins with digits 315, and ends at 650. We believe that this is a spambot. He wants to steal the IP addresses of all subscribers to start mass spam mailing. Please inform us if you notice that any of your IP addresses is now in the black list. We delete this IP address in the near future.
