this name is not the same as the name of the wds server. you can add a computer to the remote secure boot policy list by specifying the computer name, remote computer name, and remote computer's operating system. if you remove a computer from the list, it is removed from the secure boot policy for the entire domain. network unlock isn't compatible with connected standby. when a computer boots in connected standby, the computer automatically connects to the network and boots into windows. the nic isn't connected to the network while in connected standby. network unlock relies on the network coming up when the machine boots. to use connect to the network when the machine boots in connected standby, use the following registry settings to turn off the disable connect to the network at startup option: network unlock is a bitlocker protector option for operating system volumes and provides automatic unlocking of an operating system volume at system reboot when connected to a wired corporate network. in addition, network unlock also provides automatic detection of connected clients when system reboots or resumes from hibernation (for example, by wake on lan). this is an effective way for windows domain users to receive security updates without receiving the warning dialog when they use these features on tpm-enabled client hardware. this client release also provides additional enhanced tpm+pin protection options. these include automatic pin authentication for protected operating system volumes for tpm+pin protectors and automatic pin-protection provisioning for tpm+pin protectors.

if you click select and the game process isn't shown, even though you know it's running, it's likely the game runs as administrator and you therefore have to run the uuclient.exe also as administrator: right-click the uuclient.exe and select 'run as administrator' or create a shortcut to the exe on your desktop, right-click it, select properties and on the shortcut tab, select advanced..., then check the 'run as administrator' checkbox and click ok. in this role, the it partner will have to ensure that the client is using the latest version of bitlocker (10.10, or later) and that the appropriate levels of security have been applied to the computer, the it partner will also need to review the output of `dism /online /cleanup-image /restorehealth` to make sure that all prerequisites for the network unlock feature have been met. in general, these projects require a lot of time, resources, and planning. it's also a tough market for ip lawyers, there are only so many hours in a day, and it's tough for even experienced lawyers to go from zero to a client project overnight. it takes patience, perseverance, and a good working knowledge of the technology, as well as some luck. the typical ip clinic it partner begins these projects by exploring the company's requirements and the technology it has available. does the company use a managed service provider (msp)? if so, where does it maintain the client's data? what can the partner do to make the client's data available in the event of a catastrophic event like a fire or earthquake? if the msp is not in the same building, how can the partner access the data? 5ec8ef588b
