AD Bulk Users X64

AD Bulk Users is an utility for importing large numbers of Active Directory Users or Active Directory Groups into NetIQ Identity Manager for use in a NetIQ Active Directory. The program enables you to create a connection to a network directory such as Microsoft Active Directory and enter new users and groups directly. AD Bulk Users supports many different types of connections to Active Directory including, LDAP, ADSI and RID Link. You can select to use a blank template for users or assign a specific name to users before assigning groups and permissions. The program also supports changing passwords and user and group properties and settings. Using the standard ADBulk Users GUI, you can either import a simple list of users and groups or you can import your Active Directory attributes directly with the other options (extended). Using the Advanced Options, you can import single and multiple users at a time. The program can also be used for multiple locations by selecting a predefined source location and creating a destination location on the Network. Active Directory Bulk Users can be used to edit any or all of the following attributes: Name, Account Type, Workstations, User Contacts, User Groups, User Logons, User Associations, User Passwords, User Display, User Local Groups, User Mailboxes, User Permissions, User Home Folders, User Personal Notes, and User Display Properties. When importing attributes from Active Directory, you can change the properties for users and groups that you have imported to modify the properties. You can also export all the settings back to Active Directory for use on other NetIQ Identity Manager sites. Not all Active Directory Users and Groups attributes are supported, such as Alias, Job and Membership in the Enterprise or Security Groups. Also Group Assignment is not supported. Use with caution as it will reset some of your permissions, such as local group membership and local permissions on files and folders. Use of this software is at your own risk. You assume all risks of using this software. If you use this software, you agree to indemnify NetIQ against any claims, costs, damages, liabilities or expenses (including attorney fees) arising out of your use of this software. License Single User License A single user license provides unlimited installations for one user. Network Administrator License A network administrator license provides for the installation of this application on a computer located in a network with administrative rights (for example, where the NetIQ Identity Manager server is located or where another administrative account is located). To obtain a license, you must purchase
