Browser Tracker is a reliable and simple to use application designed to create a backup for your Internet Explorer history. The software solution can detect the most recent activity in the browser and the websites visited, then display a report. Allows you to take snapshots periodically The setup is quick, straightforward and does not require any special attention from your part. Upon launch, you come face to face an appealing, yet empty UI that can lead you to believe the app is not working. You can hit the Capture Off function to get it started and the tool does the rest automatically. The idea behind the program is to take random and periodic screenshots of the browser along with the pages you have open at that time. In a way, it is safe to assume that the tool can create a backup for your default Internet browser. Can act as some sort of a keylogger You may activate the surveillance mode, then let it run in the background by selecting the 'Hide me' function, from the Settings menu. The software can work as a keylogger that allows you to view the website, pages and domains that have been accessed from the computer. Aside from displaying the destinations, the tool also features a View function that allows you to check out the snapshots taken while you were away from the computer. Depending on the number of images stored, you may have to wait a bit until the thumbnail images load. However, you should bear in mind that the app's storage capability is 5 GB, so make sure you have enough space on your hard drive. Reliable monitoring and recording tool Browser Tracker allows you to record any activity you or another user makes on your computer, regarding websites or network places. Therefore, you may verify the Internet activity on your computer, even when you are offline. 5.0 5.0 By: eric basom By: eric basom As a producer of television and radio commercials and other Internet media, my company has been putting up ads on the Internet for the last six years. We were able to find many professional tools that make our job easier but the only thing that is worth mentioning is the free Internet Spy. This program allows us to make backups of the most visited and important websites for our clients. And since we work with hundreds of clients who demand high quality, we use Internet Spy every day. In just a few seconds, we can check out the online ads of clients who have asked us to monitor their Internet activities
