Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a chip coil, and more particularly to a chip coil with a high efficiency, which is a coil that has a conductor embedded in a resin housing and has a plurality of resin cores disposed in the resin housing and a pair of electrodes disposed between the resin cores in the resin housing. 2. Related Art In the related art, chip coils having a conductor embedded in a resin housing are known. For example, PTL 1 discloses a conductor embedded in a housing that consists of a resin housing and a metal housing that is hermetically sealed on the upper surface of the resin housing. This conductor embedded in the housing is characterized in that: the conductor is protected by the resin housing and the upper surface of the resin housing is in close contact with the upper surface of the metal housing; the electrode is disposed at a position nearer to the conductor than the housing; and the conductor is disposed in a resin housing and a pair of electrodes are disposed in a metal housing that is hermetically sealed on the upper surface of the resin housing.
